1 Study the following source material and then answer the questions which follow.

Source A By 1701 the European powers were increasingly worried by Louis XIV's pursuit of glory. They united in the Grand Alliance, and the War of Spanish Succession swept across Europe. Louis now had no great generals; his army was run down from previous wars, and France's finances were very weak.

Adapted from P A HOLMES, Louis XIV, 1983

Source B

A brief text extract adapted from J A LYNN, The French Wars, 1667-1714, 2002, describing how Louis XIV seized towns and lands during the late seventeenth century. Not reproduced here due to third-party copyright constraints.

Source C In September 1681, French expansion provoked widespread alarm when Louis XIV and 30 000 troops seized Strasbourg. This was a free city of the Empire to which France could lay no claim whatsoever. Louis XIV rode into the conquered city in a golden coach pulled by eight horses. He pleased Catholic opinion by insisting that Protestant worship in the cathedral should cease.

Adapted from R WILKINSON, Louis XIV, France and Europe 1661-1715, 2005

Source D Louis XIV suffered the consequences of having alienated other countries from which he increasingly faced organised opposition. After 1685 the Protestant states had a desire to retaliate for the suffering of their fellow Protestants.

Adapted from D J STURDY, Louis XIV, 1998
